

Prepping for Masters by Syed Ashar Javed (21st January 2023)

“Prepping for Masters” by Syed Ashar Javed was held by The Arc, the Data Science club of IGDTUW on the 21st of January in online mode. The talk was based around Ashar’s experience as a Masters student at Carnegie Mellon University studying Computer Vision. The talk was very popular among the student community of IGDTUW, with students from all branches and years attending. The interviewers asked Ashar an array of questions around his interest in pursuing a Masters and how he secured admission in one of the most reputed research institutes of the world. Ashar also discussed his view on the future of Artificial Intelligence and research in the field, while also going in depth into the application process of applying to CMU to the work that he is doing now as an ML engineer in a Computer Vision start-up.
